People are returnin home in as great number these first ceks of September as they left in early ammer. Maxinkuckee became almost deopulated Monday last. when thirty-nine ummer sojourners left for this city. Trey included the party of young people Mr. Judah had been entertaining at her catage for a fortnight. The Michigan resors are also sending home their visitors. There are ppmises of a very gay winter season, socially, and parties are frequently talked about there being a dozen or more hostesses for large parties already named. Some of the prominent families who have been leading somewhat retired lives for society circles, and there are twelve or fifteen young ladies who will blos-som into belles. Some of them are the prettiest young ladies in the city. Mo-distes are returning from the fashion cen-ters with ideas for hardsome costumes and beautiful ball and pary toilets. After the first party or two thenew gowns will begin to appear, for it take a wear or two of an old party dress to deide that "it isn't fit to be seen." Whether there will be something new in the way of entertainment remains to be seen. Surely some of the many who have been no only over this country, who have been no only over this country, lut in Europe, have discovered a mode for the amusement of guests that will furnish the style for the eason. Days at nome and a special hour or serving tea draw out charming coterie of friends, and a fifteen minutes' call at a tea-drinking will unite the bond of frendship and promote acquaintance beter than a quarter of an hour visit and no refeshment.

During the accedingly dull social season, which it i to be hoped is over for a time, a wellsnown young lady had a friend come tovisit her who remained several weeks. The only dissipations which could be offerd were street-car rides, and a buck-board farty to Allisonville. One morning thenostess mentioned some large manufactory in the city, and the guest said she would like to see it, further said that she was much interested in everything guest likedmanufactories the hostess could keep her applied with entertainment as long as thee was any prospect of her staying. So, ster that, each morning and afternoon som place was visited, and the wonderful pricesses of production proved an unfailing source of interest. People, as a rule, are voefully ignorant of the manner in which he commonest articles are formed, and since the visits were made the hostess is an enthusiastic reporter of all she saw. Personal Mention.
